DEEDS of individual courage still arouse the world more than any other achievement. Lindbergh's welcome proves that men feel, today, as they did about Orville, Duguesclaux or Perseus. The "Lindbergh" fighter, "daisy" or "himself," is the man adored by the crowd.

Any man is courageous with many around him. With a crowd, it is easier to go than not to go. But, by yourself, it is different.

The great crowds that bow for Lindbergh, and that adored when he started off to the tug, alone, at daybreak, know why they applaud him.

LINDBERGH warns Americans not to expect regular, safe transatlantic flying in a month or in a year. It may take years to perfect the flight, from civilization to civilization.

That is just why this venture should be "the best" of perfecting NOW. Other companies are working at it, carefully, and working at the possibility of making long flight destructive to an enemy.

THE BRITISH soon begin a flight of many airplanes to keep sailing around and around the British island for four days. And BOMBING will be the important part of the experimental flight. Prizes will be given for success in bomb dropping.

CIRCUS KIDS CHEATED BY MISTAKE ON PARADE

This wheels of the police department machinery, misled by the vaudeville superintendent of police, stopped turning momentarily today when police officers on the "101" parade were fumbled and went into confusion. For thousands of children had been disappointed.

Because of the error in police orders, many of a junior clerk in the department, Michael H. Crowley's office, the kids were left standing along the curb from Tremont and Dover streets up Tremont and along Boston street—without a parade of clowns and lions and tigers.

MILLIONS SEE AIR HERO IN PARADE

By JAMES I. KILGALLEN

Columnist

New York, June 13—Aflame with color and bursting with enthusiasm, New York today roared a tumultuous welcome to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who three weeks and three days ago blazed a glorious trail through the air from New York to Paris.

"Lindy!" That was the affectionate greeting roared from millions of throats, again and again, in thunderous volleys. The huge throngs stretching from the Battery to Central Park shouted that one word in a hysterical frenzy.

Cars, loaded, bumper vessels, crowded, factory whistles blew, automobile horns blared and people went wild with admiration as Colonel Lindbergh made his triumphant entry into the city after a flight of 33 1/2 hours.

New York, June 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, mother of today's hero, gave as she walked the coming of her son at the Battery in the midst of an uproarious welcome. "Lindbergh did much more than my son in aviation," said Mrs. Lindbergh. "I hope he will be honored."

QUEEN OF THE AIR LEADS AERIAL WELCOME

This beautiful view was taken from the giant Joe Angles and shows the U. S. S. Memphis steaming up the Potomac bearing Col. Lindbergh on the way to his triumphal reception in Washington and followed by hundreds of flag-bedecked boats of all sorts while whistles and horns kept up a continuous din of welcome.

WHERE MAYOR WALKER GREETED HIM

These stands in City Hall Park, New York, will be packed today when Mayor Walker, on behalf of New York's millions, will greet Colonel Lindbergh as he pauses on his way to Central Park.

WINDS ROARS AND SAILS SCARS ON NEW YORK

From Washington in a little over two hours. Nothing comparable to it has been witnessed in New York since the return of the famous Twenty-seventh Division from the World War.

Even Admiral Groves' Navy's reception upon his return from Manila Bay in 1898 was surpassed, certainly the welcome was as great as that accorded General John J. Pershing when he returned victoriously from the World War.

ALIGHTS IN HARBOR

Madam broke loose when "Lindbergh" in an amphibious plane, descended gracefully to the gleaming waters of the harbor.

The big guns from Governor Island and Fort Wadsworth boomed their greeting; whistles and sirens on the hundreds of craft of all sorts, from majestic ocean liners to tiny tugboats, chimed the harbor, were unisoned, and from the green slopes of the shore thousands of people lit with a mighty roar.

"Lindbergh" smiled again. He had expected a reception, but nothing quite like this. He waved to crowds lining the decks of the flag-bedecked vessels.

He was soon transferred from the cockpit of the plane to the city's official boat, the Macon, which was brightly dressed in flags from stern to stern.

Hand aboard the boats playing string tunes as the Macon, with the famous guest on deck, sailed up the harbor through a lane of several hundred vessels to Pier A at the Battery.

Airplanes dived overhead in the bright sunlight, sweet music to "Lindbergh" ears. He looked upward frequently, as the three executed fine formations.

8,000 ON GUARD

Fifty thousand people were massed around Battery Park when the Macon landed "Lindbergh." A hundred brightly armored police horses, bearing mounted officers, pranced excitedly while their riders strove to control the straining crowd.

More than 1,000 policemen formed a solid cordon in the two blocks between Pier A and the Elizabeth station. From there to City Hall Park, New York, the Macon sailed, with Colonel Lindbergh as her own constant attendant, at intervals of ten feet.

All of the entire police force of 18,000 men were on duty somewhere along the line of march.

Proceeded by a escort of 10,000 men, the Macon sailed through the throngs of people to City Hall, where his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, was waiting to view the official reception of her son by the city.

Greeting in person every minute the mob that choked every inch of ground, took up a line of defense in the middle of the street and were the sidewalk, edged into the street.

At City Hall Park a fierce throng assembled to witness the official welcoming of "Lindbergh" when the Macon arrived. The crowd occupied every available seat in the Battery and that another 50,000 to 50,000 jammed in Battery Place.

It was a colorful assemblage.

Lindbergh's Landing

Women and girls, attired in bright colored gowns and party hats, made up a large portion of this assemblage. Those in the grand stands had been admitted by special ticket.

Mounted police experienced difficulty in keeping the crowd back of the ropes.

From the windows of nearby shop windows ticket takers and tour boys of parade descended upon the heads of spectators.

As "Lindbergh" came up from the Battery, officials on the reviewing stand awaited the start of the parade.

At 12:30 p. m. the start of the parade of 10,000 troops that were awaiting "Lindbergh" up from the Battery was crowded with spectators that it seemed as though some of them did not fall off.

From window ledges of the Woodworth Building, as high as fifty stories up, people peered down at the spectacle. The roof of the New York postoffice, across the square, was thronged and roof down across more and in brilliant perches on cornices and other vantage points.

As the parade marched by the reviewing stand, the various units were identified and received hearty cheers from the massed thousands.

Colonel Lindbergh's triumphal march through lower New York was preceded by the steady march of ramping files. Troop after troop of soldiers and battalion after battalion of sailors had started in parade long before Lindbergh landed.

The escorting parade was greeted with echoing cheers as it passed the "Lindbergh" parade, but great as the enthusiasm was the crowd was "holding fire" for "The Colonel."

All for "Lindbergh"

The splendor of troops on parade, the glory of beautiful girls on artistic floats, and even the shiny hats of the Macon's escort, did not hold the usual lure for the crowds, as they were jammed along the curb.

This was a Lindbergh welcome and the crowd saved their enthusiasm for the slender youth and for him alone. The thousands who were marching in parade were just so many more.

Great applause broke forth when Lindbergh's auto was preceded by a float showing an arc of the world, the air line, the air ship, and the air ship.

He was escorted to the automobile and he emerged from the automobile and he went to the reception stand. When, chairman of the Mayor's reception committee. He was given a tremendous ovation. The presentation by Mayor Walker followed.

Spray on Tip Damaged His Own Plane, Says Lindbergh

New York, June 13 (A.P.)—Colonel Lindbergh told Grover Whalen, chairman of Mayor Walker's reception committee, that he had learned today on going to Bolling Field, Washington, that his "Spirit of St. Louis" had been damaged by spray washing over the sides of the cruiser Memphis while the Spirit was in Europe. The salt spray, Lindbergh said, had got through the packing.

'Lindbergh Is in Fine Shape; Standing Strain Well

Washington, June 13 (A.P.)—Lindbergh is bearing up well under the strain, according to Dr. James F. Connelley, the White House physician, who examined him here.

Dr. Connelley said the flier was in fine shape. During the examination he remarked that Lindbergh might stand a little more weight, but his mother insisted on being "cautious."

"Oh, he is all right," she said. "He can save his own weight for gasoline."

The "old 40th," famous Irish fighting regiment, marched by. This was Father P. Duffy's regiment. Then followed in order the 10th regiment, the 17th regiment and as each regiment passed the throng broke into cheers.

Necks were craned a few minutes after one o'clock when a fleet of airplanes swept over City Hall. First came a group of five, quickly followed by others, most of them flying in V and diamond formations. They did not fly very low, due to the danger of injury to spectators in the crowd.

Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, the flier's mother, who arrived by train early today, came to the City Hall, accompanied by Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the Mayor, and friends.

Before going to the Mayor's office, from where she witnessed part of the parade in front of City Hall, Mrs. Lindbergh was taken over the top of the parade, across the square, along Fifth avenue, across the square, and then across the square to a welcome to her.

Mrs. Lindbergh smiled and waved at the crowd. She seemed much interested and a trifle amused over the manner in which New York had decked itself to greet her son.

PLANES OVERHEAD

The comment often about the decorations to Mrs. Walker, they were escorted by motorcycle police men. They were escorted to City Hall, where she was warmly greeted. So was Father Francis P. Duffy, who appeared in full uniform as chairman of the "Fighting 40th," accompanied by Captain Alfred E. Smith, Jr., son of the Governor.

Many spectators also for St. Thomas Lipton, who arrived with Mrs. Lipton, Otway, leader of Tammany.

Planes appeared across City Hall Park, where the crowd was gathered. The crowd was so dense that it was difficult to see the planes.

This is the first photograph taken of Colonel Lindbergh and his mother posed together after his arrival in Washington, where she was the first one to greet him.

Lindy and Admiral Borge became fast friends on the voyage from Cherbourg and it was the admiral who escorted him when he again stepped on the homeland soil.

And here is Lindy, speaking into the microphone. Radio set owners thus may see America's hero boy, as they heard him Saturday. The youth was modest and self-effacing in his talk, despite the magnificence of his wonderful flight.

The "Spirit of St. Louis" exhibited on a decorated float on the Potomac, where thousands inspected it. This method of exhibition solved the problem of showing it and keeping it safe from souvenir hunters.

Showing General James M. Kennedy, head of the Walter Reed Hospital, and Colonel Lindbergh walking between cheering crowds of nurses, patients and spectators at the hospital, where he went to greet disabled vets.

Wash by electricity in any tub

This new washer is changing wash day to wash hour

"Think of the convenience"

Now—wash day becomes a joy.

What a revelation to see your clothes being washed in your own tub, so quickly, so thoroughly, by a machine so utterly simple!

TURBAX is the working unit that makes your tub a washing machine. It drives a cleansing jet of sudsy water through every mesh of fabric. No mechanical part touches the clothes and the most delicate or filmy garments are safe.

Thousands of busy housewives and mothers are turning to TURBAX. Thousands are already enjoying its convenience.

You deserve one, too.

Compare these advantages

Cheaper, but more durable. yet washes every type of fabric and rinses as well.

Smaller, but more powerful. Works right in your own tub without tilting, draining and cleaning a separate receptacle. It saves the clothes because no moving part touches them.

Simpler, but more versatile. Has only two bearings, no gears, bolts or drums to get out of order.

Quicker, but more thorough. Cleans a tub full of clothes in 10 minutes and they come out cleaner.

Manufactured and guaranteed by the makers of the famous Freed-Eisemann Radio.

"Lindy" Plans to Pay Hub Visit June 19 or 20

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will come to Boston after he finishes with New York and St. Louis, Governor Fuller told State House reporters today, basing his belief on what he said he has been told by ex-Senator William M. Butler.

According to the former Senator, the Hub is next on the list for a Lindbergh visit after New York and St. Louis.

His arrival, as clarified now, will be about the latter end of June.

'GREATEST OF ALL TRIBUTES,' SAYS LINDY

New York (Press and Tribune)—Wallace at his desk in the city of 24,000,000 people, Lindbergh said today.

Lindbergh said today that Mayor and Council of New York City are the greatest of all tributes to him.

Blushing and all smiles, Mr. Lindbergh came forward. She stood beside her boy and looked at him proudly and then turned to the crowd and said a few words. With a slight bow, she withdrew. Lindbergh's eyes following her until she reached her seat, several rows back.

A girl, who smiled and waved to the crowd, said: "When I was a child, I was in New York. Lindbergh's name was warned that it was a good idea. Forget the night of the 24th and the demonstration in the city."

SURPASSES EUROPE

"After a half-century in the world, I began to do a little better than no comparison in what a magnificent time was like."

At London the crowd estimated that 1,500,000 of the world's population had gathered to see the flight. The French, in London, New York and in Washington, London, volume reception, the flight was a belief that the world was as all the other people.

"When it is finished, I want to have a dinner for the people and the flight. I want to go away from America and I want to have been there for the first time over the Atlantic Ocean and see the busy life of the world."

Griff and Kelly Would Come Here; Fans Frown on Sale of Benton and Taylor to N.Y.

By NICK FLATLEY.
Boston baseball fans almost unanimously have thumbs down on the Braves trade with the New York Giants, but, at the same time, seem inclined to wait for further developments in the baseball market before emitting any loud yell.

The deal that would place Fred Knepper, General Manager of the Braves, in New York and Tom Griggs, General Manager of the Yankees, in Boston, has been the subject of much speculation. The trade has been rumored for some time, but it is now expected to be completed soon.

HOW TO BOX By GENE TUNNEY World's Heavyweight Champion

In the nine articles which have preceded this, I have outlined the basic rules in the art of boxing.

When punching, remember always that there must be no hand in the wheel, no matter what number you are punching.

The first rule in boxing is to keep your feet on the ground. If you lose your feet, you lose the fight.

The second rule is to keep your head down. If you lose your head, you lose the fight.

The third rule is to keep your arms up. If you lose your arms, you lose the fight.

The fourth rule is to keep your legs up. If you lose your legs, you lose the fight.

The fifth rule is to keep your chest up. If you lose your chest, you lose the fight.

The sixth rule is to keep your back up. If you lose your back, you lose the fight.

The seventh rule is to keep your stomach up. If you lose your stomach, you lose the fight.

The eighth rule is to keep your hips up. If you lose your hips, you lose the fight.

The ninth rule is to keep your shoulders up. If you lose your shoulders, you lose the fight.

The tenth rule is to keep your neck up. If you lose your neck, you lose the fight.

The eleventh rule is to keep your head up. If you lose your head, you lose the fight.

The twelfth rule is to keep your arms down. If you lose your arms, you lose the fight.

The thirteenth rule is to keep your legs down. If you lose your legs, you lose the fight.

The fourteenth rule is to keep your chest down. If you lose your chest, you lose the fight.

The fifteenth rule is to keep your back down. If you lose your back, you lose the fight.

The sixteenth rule is to keep your stomach down. If you lose your stomach, you lose the fight.

The seventeenth rule is to keep your hips down. If you lose your hips, you lose the fight.

The eighteenth rule is to keep your shoulders down. If you lose your shoulders, you lose the fight.

The nineteenth rule is to keep your neck down. If you lose your neck, you lose the fight.

The twentieth rule is to keep your head down. If you lose your head, you lose the fight.

The twenty-first rule is to keep your arms up. If you lose your arms, you lose the fight.

The twenty-second rule is to keep your legs up. If you lose your legs, you lose the fight.

The twenty-third rule is to keep your chest up. If you lose your chest, you lose the fight.

The twenty-fourth rule is to keep your back up. If you lose your back, you lose the fight.

Oh, Man!

Oh, Man! You promise the little wife that you'll be home by 11 o'clock.

But it's nearer 2 A.M. when you tiptoe into the house.

And just when you think you're going to get away with it, you start to cough.

And have to take a scorching cold down.

And say a dozen American beauties next day to square yourself.

Oh, man! Will you ever get wise and smoke old Golds? There's not a cough in a carload.

NEVER CHANGE POSITION OF "MATCHED" TUBES
 When a set of vacuum tubes is installed in a radio receiver, it is important that the tubes be placed in the correct position. If the tubes are placed in the wrong position, the receiver will not work properly. It is important that the tubes be placed in the correct position, and that they be kept in that position for the life of the receiver.
